March 2025

Greetings in Christ.

Hopefully by the time you receive this months' copy of The Minuteman News, we will be getting a break from this extra cold weather we have been having. I feel certain that Dane Wigington of geoengineeringwatch.org is right. The weather has been played with so much for so long that it will never be "normal" again. As Isaiah 51:6 and Hebrews 1:10-11 say, the earth shall wax old as a garment. Mankind has tampered with and abused His creation for far too long. As Romans 8:22 tells us, the whole creation groans and travaileth in pain. Except Christ shortened the final days, no flesh would be saved. Praise Him for His mercy and grace!

In order to understand what is happening in the world we now live in, we need to turn off the mind control devices we all spend far too much time on today! The worst of which is the one we can't seem to be able to live without in today's society that we call a cell phone! "Cell" phone is certainly a good name for it! It keeps your brain "locked up" almost continually! Like it or not! That is the truth!

In closing, please allow me to offer an extremely serious caution and warning to all who will hear and receive it. Although we see the current administration doing what many think, including myself, is a lot of good and necessary things, we must not be deceived by putting our trust in any man or group of men! (Jeremiah 17:5)

Deliverance is coming! We must keep our eyes on our Saviour's study and obey His Word! Look up! Our redemption draweth nigh! (Luke 21:28)

Love you all in Christ,

Pastor Butch

mRNA Inventor Blows Whistle: 'Bird Flu' Is a Hoax to Push More 'Vaccines'

Frank Bergman January 1, 2025

A world-renowned virologist has blown the whistle to warn the public that "bird flu" hysteria is a hoax designed to instill fear in the public as part of an effort to push more "vaccines."

Dr. Robert Malone, who is credited as one of the inventors of mRNA technology, warns that "bird flu" is a "psychological warfare operation."

Malone asserts that the recent fearmongering about the virus in the corporate media is merely the groundwork for unleashing medical tyranny.

The eminent biochemist says the current hysteria over bird flu is intended to scare the public into submission.

He warned that bird flu fearmongering is being used to condition the public to accept more pandemic-style restrictions, similar to Covid.

Those restrictions include new waves of lockdowns and mRNA "vaccine" mandates, Malone warns.

Malone first raised the alarm in a Tuesday post on X.

"I am [an] expert in influenza and have consulted with the WHO [World Health Organization] over the past two decades on the topic of flu vaccines," Malone wrote.

"This is one subject matter I am extremely knowledgeable about.

"What is happening now with 'bird flu' is another psyops campaign being conducted by the administrative/deep state against the American people."

— Robert W Malone, MD (@RWMaloneMD) December 31, 2024

Malone described the government as “chasing a rapidly evolving RNA virus with a syringe.

“Just like they did with HIV and [COVID]-19.”

“All the while they are getting prepared to roll out masks, lock-downs, quarantines, etc.

“All the while getting ready to roll out mRNA vaccines for poultry and livestock, as well as for all of us.”

Dr. Malone noted mass testing for bird flu would inevitably yield positive results and suggested it's part of a broader agenda to roll out mass vaccinations for farm animals and impose new regulations.

“In years past, this was not even considered,” Malone wrote.

“Of course, these facilities producing the tests have been repurposed from the COVID-19 testing facilities.

“More regulatory capture.”

Malone concluded by asking whether President Donald Trump's incoming administration would see through the psyop or go along with it.

“The questions are: Will we all comply?

“Will we be forced to comply?

“Will President Trump go along with the PsyWar/psyops campaign again?

“We will know soon enough.”

Malone followed up with his warning during a powerful interview with InfoWars on New Year's Eve.

Meanwhile, a growing number of globalists are calling for mRNA vaccines to be rolled out for public use against bird flu.

As Slay News reported, former Baltimore health commissioner Dr. Leana Wen has claimed that an outbreak of "bird flu" will kill 52 percent of the population and called on the Biden administration to begin rolling out a mass vaccination campaign before President Donald Trump is sworn in next month.

Dr. Wen, who serves as one of the World Economic Forum's (WEF) "Young Global Leaders," is calling on the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) to issue an emergency authorization to rapidly roll out mRNA "vaccines" for "bird flu."

Wen is urging President Biden to use his executive authority to order the FDA to authorize the "vaccine" and expand rapid testing for "bird flu."

She argues that the plan needs to be ushered in before President Trump takes office.

The Empire Burns The Middle East While US Homelessness Surges

CAITLIN JOHNSTONE

The IDF has built a beachside resort on the coast of northern Gaza where its soldiers can take a break from committing genocide to relax, get massages, drink iced coffee, and eat ice cream and cotton candy by the shore.

Meanwhile, the last hospital in northern Gaza has been burned down by the Israeli military after days of violent siege warfare on the medical facility.

The IDF is now saying that it may stay in southern Lebanon past the 60-day limit it agreed to in its ceasefire deal with Hezbollah, which means we may soon be looking at yet another protracted illegal Israeli military occupation. A recent report from Drop Site News cites more than a dozen BBC staff who say all the British state media outlet's reporting on Israel and Palestine is ultimately controlled by a single editor named Raffi Berg, who previously worked for the CIA. The BBC reporters told Drop Site News that Berg consistently manipulates headlines and reporting in a way that benefits the information interests of the Israeli government.

An anti-Assad outlet called Verify Syria has found that viral video footage purporting to show women and children being freed from Sednaya Prison after Assad's ouster actually showed no such thing. In reality the location where the terrified women and children were filmed was a family charity facility called the Dafa Association, and they were terrified because the facility was being attacked by armed "revolutionaries".

This comes as the US-backed al-Qaeda affiliates who are now in charge in Syria announce that they probably won't be holding elections for another four years.

The US empire is up to its elbows in the middle east working frenetically to manipulate what happens there, while in the United States itself homelessness has taken another record-shattering leap forward. Homelessness in the US has increased by a staggering 18 percent since last year—and last year also saw a giant spike in homelessness of 12 percent from the year before. Officially there are now around 770,000 homeless Americans, though the real number is likely several times higher. This massive injustice is entirely by design. As the hub of a globe-spanning empire, the US needs to keep its citizenry poor, divided, distracted and powerless in order to keep them from meddling in the gears of the imperial machine. The more free time and mental spaciousness Americans have, the more they'll awaken to how depraved their government is and how badly it's screwing them over. The managers of the western empire naturally have a vested interest in keeping Americans poor, sick, ignorant, and propagandized. Which is why they remain so.

The US-centralized empire thrives on lies, manipulation, callousness, and stupidity. The entire world is made worse by its existence. It degrades the collective soul of our species. It's bad for Americans, and it's bad for everyone else. Humanity will be much better off when this murderous power structure finally crumbles.

MKUltra Documents Declassified

Guest Post by Martin Armstrong

Psychological warfare is far more powerful than bullets. The government has been studying methods of brainwashing for decades. Perhaps the most infamous studies fall under the MKUltra program that the CIA conducted from 1953 to 1964 on unsuspecting victims who did not know they were participating in a brutal study. The MKUltra experiments have been shrouded in mystery after CIA director Richard Helms and longtime MKULTRA chief Sidney Gottlieb destroyed the majority of the evidence. However, newly declassified documents shed light on the extreme human rights abuses carried out by the US government.

MKULTRA began in 1953 amid the Cold War era. The US government allegedly wanted to learn mind control tactics that they believed the Soviet Union and Chinese governments had already mastered. Furthermore, the CIA was interested in the experiments carried out by Nazis on those held in concentration camps during World War II. Operation Paperclip was the prelude to MKUltra, beginning in 1945, when the CIA began investigating torture and brainwashing methods used by the Third Reich. In fact, 1,600 Nazi scientists were recruited by the US government and encouraged to continue their work on American citizens. Those scientists also looked into ways to carry out biowarfare by weaponizing the bubonic plague. There were other studies such as project Artichoke and Bluebird that took place before the CIA developed the infamous MKUltra experiment.

(Sidney Gottlieb)

Richard Helms, the Assistant Deputy Director for Plans at the CIA, proposed the MKUltra project as a “special funding mechanism for highly sensitive CIA research and development projects that studied the use of biological and chemical materials in altering human behavior.” How could the government manipulate the human brain? The government wanted to find a “truth serum” to use on POW and their own citizens. CIA chemist Sidney Gottlieb partnered with pharmaceutical company Eli Lilly to produce the psychedelic drug LSD to carry out these brutal experiments.

Participants were taken from prisons, addiction facilities, juvenile detention centers, and even the US military. No one knew they were taking place in the study. The CIA provided researchers with an unlimited budget and often created fake foundations to provide TSS grants. Doctors from universities across the nation were recruited and they particularly enjoyed studying patients already in health or mental hospitals.

To manipulate human behavior, researchers fed their subjects LSD and other mind-altering drugs and attempted to reprogram their minds. They looked to pharmaceutical companies to develop additional drugs that could “promote illogical thinking, would help individuals to endure ‘privation, torture and coercion during interrogation” and attempts at “brain-washing.” The experiments often lasted for weeks on end. The National Security Archive (NSA) explains:

“The CIA conducted terrifying experiments using drugs, hypnosis, isolation, sensory deprivation, and other extreme techniques on human subjects, often US citizens, who frequently had no idea what was being done to them or that they were part of a CIA test.

“These records also shed light on an especially dark period in the history of the behavioral sciences in which some of the top physicians in the field conducted research and experiments usually associated with the Nazi doctors who were tried at Nuremberg.”

Sleep deprivation, electroshock treatments, radiation, and auditory harassment were among the countless tactics used during this program. There are countless tales from survivors of the horrors they experienced, but the true extent of this program is too extensive to explain here. The newly declassified documents are 1,200 pages in length and are only a fragment of the truth.

Oddly, the first 1,000 victims were taken from US military bases. New Orleans terrorist Shamsud-Din Jabbar and Las Vegas bomber Matthew Livelsberger were both stationed at Fort Bragg’s military base in North Carolina. Coincidentally, they carried out their attacks back-to-back, although those who knew the men claim they had no indications that either could commit such crimes. Ryan Routh, the man who attempted to assassinate Trump on the golf course, also has ties to Fort Bragg and visited over 100 times.

One could go down a deep rabbit hole looking into each individual scenario. You need not be a conspiracy theorist to admit something does not add up. Congresswoman Anna Luna Paulina is requesting information on Jabbar and Livelsberger regarding their connection to the Fort Bragg military base. Others who are not afraid to be labeled conspiracy theorists may soon begin asking questions, too.

Did anyone believe that the government simply gave up on developing methods of psychological and biological warfare? The government actively funds agencies that study biowarfare and successfully carried out perhaps the largest psyops in history with COVID and the accompanying restrictions. There are endless examples of the government carrying out experiments on large portions of the population. The terrifying part is that no one knows they are participating. This is worth taking a closer look.

Top Cardiologist Raises Alarm: Current 'Bird Flu' Strain Was 'Man-Made' in U.S Biolab

Frank Bergman December 31, 2024 - 12:54 pm

A world-renowned cardiologist is raising the alarm after uncovering evidence that the current strain of "bird flu" is "man-made" and was developed in an American biolab using dangerous "gain-of-function" research.

The warning was issued by Dr. Peter McCullough, one of the world's leading medical experts.

During an appearance on InfoWars, McCullough warned that the current strain of "bird flu" – H5N1 – is a "man-made problem" that was developed in Georgia.

McCullough explains that a peer-reviewed study traced the origins of the strain to the United States Department of Agriculture's (USDA) Southeast Poultry Research Laboratory (SEPRL) in Athens, GA.

Researchers believe the gain-of-function research is also tied to the Erasmus Medical Center in Rotterdam, the Netherlands.

According to McCullough, the gain-of-function research sought to modify "bird flu" to allow it to jump to humans and spread through the general public.

"Bird flu, or H5N1 influenza, has been around for over a hundred years," McCullough noted on InfoWars.

"It's well documented in the scientific literature in the United States.

"This most recent outbreak, which is now four years old, [...] the current strain of bird flu, is a product of gain-of-function research done in the USDA Poultry Research Laboratory in Athens, Georgia.

"So, it is a man-made problem that our farms are experiencing right now."

McCullough continues by explaining that the U.S. federal government has been trying to modify the virus so it can spread rapidly through humans and other animals.

"The stated goal of the USDA in doing this research was simply to get it to jump from chickens into mallard ducks," he explains.

"And that way, it can spread all over."

McCullough then called on President Donald Trump's incoming administration to crack down on supposedly illegal gain-of-function research.

"So it's a bad line of thinking to continue to do gain-of-function research," he said.

"And, I hope, under the new administration, one of the very first steps taken by the U.S. National Institutes of Health, the CDC... would be to do an all-out ban on gain-of-function research, certainly in U.S. labs and our funding of what happens outside of the United States.

"Because we know it's not just the government that funds this research but also the Gates Foundation, [and] many other pro-vaccine foundations are ramping up gain-of-function research.

"Even in the initial spending bill that the U.S. House of Representatives had, that [Speaker] Mike Johnson initially presented, there were 12 more U.S. biolabs proposed."

The warning from McCullough comes as the corporate media and pharmaceutical industry virologists continue to hype "bird flu."

Last week, KFF Health News published a report claiming that the U.S. government's failure to contain bird flu outbreaks among cattle could soon lead to an even worse pandemic than COVID-19.

The report cites numerous public health experts and government officials sounding the alarm about the likelihood that Americans may have to deal with another, even deadlier, pandemic if health agencies can't properly address bird flu outbreaks occurring in cattle and poultry farms.

"To understand how the bird flu got out of hand, KFF Health News interviewed nearly 70 government officials, farmers and farmworkers, and researchers with expertise in virology, pandemics, veterinary medicine, and more," the outlet reported.

The report quoted Angela Rasmussen, a virologist at the University of Saskatchewan in Canada, who warned:

“We are in a terrible situation and going into a worse situation.

“I don’t know if the bird flu will become a pandemic, but if it does, we are screwed.”

The report continued by accusing the Biden administration of being “sluggish” in responding to the bird flu outbreaks.

However, the reasoning behind the sudden rush for fearmongering about bird flu is becoming clear.

As Slay News reported, a prominent doctor and former health official is calling on the Biden administration to begin rolling out a mass vaccination campaign before President Donald Trump is sworn in next month.

Former Baltimore health commissioner Dr. Leana Wen, who serves as one of the World Economic Forum’s (WEF) “Young Global Leaders,” has claimed that an outbreak of “bird flu” will kill 52 percent of the population.

Dr. Wen is calling on the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) to issue an emergency authorization to rapidly roll out mRNA “vaccines” for “bird flu.”

Wen is urging President Biden to use his executive authority to order the FDA to authorize the “vaccine” and expand rapid testing for “bird flu.”

She argues that the plan needs to be ushered in before President Trump takes office.

In an appearance on CBS News’ “Face The Nation” Sunday, Wen claimed that the Biden admin should take steps to prepare for a possible animal-to-human outbreak of avian influenza (H5N1).

Wen argues that the Biden admin needs to expand rapid testing for the virus and order the FDA to quickly approve the H5N1 mRNA “vaccine” for public use to prevent another pandemic.

She stressed that the FDA must approve the H5N1 vaccine so that 5 million doses of it can be quickly administered to the “vulnerable” population before Trump takes office.

They Don't Just Tell Us What To Think, They Train Us HOW To Think

CAITLIN JOHNSTONE

Pro. 22:6

It's not just that they tell us what to think, it's that they train us how to think.

From grade school on we are fed a framework for thinking about the world whose premises are completely fraudulent. Any analysis which does not take place within that framework is portrayed as ignorant at best and dangerous extremism at worst.

Before we come up with a single thought of our own about politics, we are trained to assume as our starting point that elections are real and that the official democratically elected government is the only power structure calling the shots in our country. We are trained to assume that decisions get made in our government based on how people vote in elections between two parties who oppose each other and promote the most organically popular positions on important issues in order to win votes. This is all complete bullshit, but it's the foundation we're taught to premise all our ideas and opinions about political matters upon.

Before we come up with a single thought of our own about government, we are trained to assume as our starting point that the people running things in our country are known to us and occupy official positions in our capitol. We are trained to assume that if we have a problem with the way things are going, there are official channels through which the powerful can be held to account and real changes can be advanced. The fact that we are actually ruled by unelected plutocrats and empire managers who often have no position in the official government is never seriously entertained.

Before we come up with a single thought of our own about the media, we are trained to assume as our starting point that we live in a free country with a free press instead of a dystopian civilization where the news media function as the propaganda services of our rulers. We are trained to assume that while some parts of the media may have obvious biases regarding which mainstream political faction they favor, it's still possible to get a more or less accurate read on what's happening in the world by listening to both sides of that ideological divide. None of this is true, but it's the framework in which all mainstream analysis of the western media occurs.

Before we come up with a single thought of our own about foreign policy, we are trained to assume as our starting point that the US and its allies are more or less a force for good in this world, and that all the stories we hear about the governments and groups it works to destroy are more or less true. We are trained to assume that while the western power structure is imperfect and might make mistakes here and there, it must never stop killing and tyrannizing foreigners, because if it does, the bad guys might win. The easily quantifiable fact that the US-centralized empire is by far the most tyrannical and abusive power structure on earth never enters into the discussion.

This is the conceptual framework for thinking about the world that people are trained to espouse, first in school, and then throughout the rest of their lives by the mass media. If they go to university, as the most powerful people in our society typically do, then this framework is hammered home far more aggressively—especially in the most esteemed universities that the so-called “elite” tend to come from.

No thoughts which arise from outside this framework are taken seriously in mainstream politics, media, or academia. They might occasionally be entertained by friends over a bong or between chuckles on a podcast, but they are kept in the margins. This is reinforced by the way people learn that in order to ascend to influence and success they need to adhere to a specific way of thinking about things, thereby ensuring that all the most influential voices align with the authorized framework as well.

Ferocious disagreement is permitted, but before the debate even begins everyone involved needs to adhere to the founding assumptions of the official framework. After that you can argue as passionately as you like with the other side of this manufactured divide, because your ideas cannot pose any serious threat to your rulers.

And this, ultimately, is why the world looks the way it looks: because powerful people have been so successful at manipulating the way the public thinks about things. Our minds are inundated with propaganda telling us what to think, but more importantly they are shaped and programmed how to think about any new information they might come across.

Most of us are psychologically bent to the will of the powerful before we would ever even be in a position to begin thinking about opposing the status quo. We are herded like livestock away from thoughts of revolution and change, led by tightly controlled minds the way a bull is led by the ring on its nose.

Once you see how pervasive the conditioning is, you understand why getting real revolutionary movements going faces so much inertia. We won't be able to free ourselves until we find a way to free our minds.

Conspiracy Theorists Were Right About Everything – Now What?

By Brandon Smith

For many years alternative economists and “conspiracy theorists” have argued that, according to the evidence, there has been an organized criminal cabal operating a long running agenda to exploit and eventually destroy western culture. We have suggested that much of this agenda was being funded with our own tax dollar while using government institutions and NGOs as vehicles for social engineering.

In the 20 years since I started work in the liberty movement (or patriot movement), I have seen corruption beyond imagining and it all culminated in 2020-2023 when many of us battled against the imposition of total medical tyranny and mass woke indoctrination. Even after that startling Orwellian period we were still called conspiracy theorists, but public awareness is changing rapidly.

I’ve see enough to know that what is happening today is truly unprecedented. We have entered a crossroads; a time when reality is no longer discarded for the sake of collective comfort and “conspiracy” becomes historic fact. It’s an exciting time to be alive, but also potentially hazardous.

My running theory has always been that once the house of cards came crashing down and the truth was revealed to the wider public, a whole lot of skeptics that used to call us “fringe crazies” and “tin foil hatters” would suddenly claim they “saw it coming all along”. Yes, the conspiracy theorists were right, about EVERYTHING. The truth is coming to light in a big way, but what does this mean for the future?

Can America Handle The Truth?

The recent dismantling of USAID and the open investigations into numerous federal agencies has opened a Pandora’s Box; the covert funding that these institutions are involved in (including millions in pay-offs to various news media outlets and propaganda platforms) is, I believe, just the tip of a massive iceberg that could very well sink the US system faster than the Titanic.

Elon Musk’s DOGE group has only just begun dipping their toes into the dark waters of the Treasury, Medicaid, Social Security and the Defense Department. We all know there are some horrifying monsters lurking in those depths. This doesn't even take into account the hidden activities of the controllers of the Federal Reserve.

The establishment media argues that USAID represents only 1% of the total federal budget, as if that makes the budget waste acceptable. But if there is that much mismanagement and gerrymandering in a smaller organization like USAID, imagine how much fraud there is in the rest of the federal government? .

Over the years many of us in alternative economics have wondered if our nation would be able to handle the revelation that almost everything about our system is fake. Half the country has suspected as much, but what would happen if we had hard proof – A smoking gun?

USAID is that smoking gun, the proof of death, but it's only one of many buried bodies that are about to be uncovered. The real revelations will come when DOGE discovers how much US policy is directed and controlled by entities OUTSIDE our own country.

What happens when they investigate the numerous financial and political networks connected to the WEF, DAVOS, World Bank, the IMF, the BIS, and international think tanks like the CFR, Tavistock, the Atlantic Council, Ford Foundation, Rockefeller Foundation and Open Society Foundations? What about the investment influences of Black Rock, Vanguard, Goldman Sachs, JP Morgan, etc.?

When the globalist hand behind the revolving door of cash is revealed, when the shadow government becomes a concrete and undeniable fact, is the public going freak out?

The political left is an enemy of freedom and morality, yes, but the greater issue is that they are a useful tool for more powerful elitist interests. It's a cartel, an oligarchy working together to bring down the west from within and replace it with something new. A new ideology and a new economy that would effectively turn the majority of the population into unwitting serfs.

Only four years ago the WEF was boasting about the coming of the "4th Industrial Revolution", the rise of the "cashless society", the "Fifteen Minute City" and the "Sharing Economy". And, as we now know, many of those projects were being paid for with our tax dollars. The globalists were so convinced that they had the populace dead to rights. They thought they had won.

It was only through the tireless efforts of liberty movement activists and conservatives around the world that the plan was disrupted and the globalists were sent into retreat. However, the fight is far from over. There are some important problems that need to be addressed as we enter the era of transparency. Here's what will probably happen next...

Rabid Sabotage By The Political Left

The government is effectively being audited by the Trump Administration, and the Democrats are enraged. Why? Because they (and a handful of Neo-Cons) know full well what that audit is going to find. Activist judges and progressive politicians are going to obstruct and interfere with the process as much as they can. Their entire power structure depends on the steady embezzlement of tax dollars and the constant churning of the fiat printing press.

For those people who don't understand what the big deal is with USAID, I suggest they research ESG programs and what they do. USAID was basically a vehicle for global ESG (Environmental, Social, Governance; a meaningless acronym designed to hide a program for global socialism) and it was spending incredible sums of money to spread woke propaganda into every facet of our society.

Leftist legal actions won't make much difference in the long run, but they'll still try to delay. These delays will be used to buy time for media spin. They're going full force to misrepresent DOGE as some kind of totalitarian entity "destroying democracy", however, authoritarians have never and will never pursue government transparency; this is not a thing. Authoritarians ALWAYS pursue obscurity and occult secrecy around their activities. The leftists, by their own actions, are exposed as the true totalitarians.

Democrats and establishment NGOs will continue trying to foment civil unrest and they will use woke dupes as cannon fodder in this fight. Anything to distract the public from the evidence of their criminality. Violence and terrorism should be expected.

Economic Downturn Is Inevitable – Trump Will Be Blamed

Broad budget cuts are essential to saving the economy in the long term, but they are also a double-edged sword in the short term. For example, US GDP stats rely greatly on government spending in their calculations (they shouldn't, but they do). Government spending accounts for around 36% of our nation's GDP – It's a methodology used in recent decades to make our economic health look stronger than it really is.

As Trump executes extensive cuts to government spending, this will in turn make it look as if GDP is plummeting. Leftists will claim that Trump's policies are crashing the financial system.

On top of this, I've been warning for some time that the Biden Administration has been engaging in complex data manipulation. Now that Biden is gone the real data is already coming out and it's not good. Inflation numbers and employment numbers from the Biden era are being “adjusted”, as I predicted, showing a much weaker economy than originally reported. Retail stats and GDP are next.

The American public will need a crash-course in how the economy works and who is behind the downturn, or the leftist media will have a field day with the revised stats.

Can The Investment World Handle The Truth?

When the level of fraud within the US system is fully exposed, will the investment world panic? Will they pull their money out of US markets that have long been supported artificially by government funds and central bank intervention? These are valid questions we need to consider. The truth needs to come out regardless; nothing can be fixed until the source of the rot is uncovered. That said, the mantra “ignorance is bliss” is one that America has been living by for a long time.

I think Americans are desperate for the truth and desperate for reform, but change on the scale we are facing always brings chaos with it. I suggest that conservatives and patriots prepare accordingly.

Cutting Ties With Globalist Run Governments

As the process of transparency moves forward in the US we have to take into account that Europe, the UK, Australia and Canada are all still well under the hypnosis of the cabal. Things are changing overseas; the UK, Germany and France are starting to see conservative movements blossom, but globalists are determined to stop them from gaining political traction.

I suspect we will see strained or broken ties with many former allies in the coming years as they crack down on their own citizens and show their true authoritarian colors. We're already seeing this happening in the UK, Germany, France and Romania among others.

The Most Dangerous Time Is When You Think You Are Winning

Establishment elites are like vampires. In fact, I suspect the whole mythology of vampires from centuries ago is actually based on the very real and evil crimes of the elites of the past. They use their wealth and influence to gain a foothold in your country, city or village. They use subterfuge to gain trust and exert authority. They spread darkness and corruption like a cancer, then they feed on the population at will while pretending to be benevolent leaders.

But these parasites must be invited in by the people. The public has to, in some ways, give consent to their own victimization. We have to willfully ignore their activities; our apathy is seen as consent. Sunlight is the primary remedy and the vampires flee when it's unleashed. Finally, if all else fails a stake through the heart is required to end them. It could be a proverbial stake, or a very real one.

Audits of the corrupt system are the sunlight. Independent patriot rebellion is the stake through the heart if all else fails.

Just because the evil is exposed does not necessarily mean it will stop or disappear. Often these cornered creatures fight even harder and their mission is to take you down with them. Great truth often precedes the darkest of days and the collapse of epochs. As the shadow government faces uncertainty for perhaps the first time ever, who knows how the leviathan will react?

8 Conspiracy Theories That The Mainstream Media Has Been Forced To Admit Are Actually True

MICHAEL SNYDER

The mainstream media is in the habit of labeling something a “conspiracy theory” whenever they are attempting to discredit a particular point of view. Of course such “conspiracy theories” have been proven to actually be true time after time.

Meanwhile, the mainstream media has been caught in lie after lie in recent years. As a result, trust in the media is the lowest that it has ever been in the entire history of our country. At this point, most people realize that our largest media outlets are going to push the agenda of the globalists that own them, and they are going to be extremely hesitant to expose the big pharmaceutical companies and other giant corporations that spend billions of dollars to advertise on their networks.

Michael Snyder’s Substack is a reader-supported publication. To receive new posts and support my work, consider becoming a free or paid subscriber.

The good news is that we have entered a period of time when the truth is coming out about so many things. The American people are now demanding transparency and accountability from major institutions throughout our society, and that is a wonderful thing. It is especially gratifying to see the mainstream media publicly admit mistakes that they have made. The following are 8 “conspiracy theories” that the mainstream media has been forced to admit are actually true...

#1 The Lab Leak Theory

For years, we were told that the lab leak theory was just “disinformation”. Of course now it has come out that certain individuals in very prominent positions waged a relentless campaign to discredit it. They were desperate to keep a lid on what really happened, but now the truth has come out. In fact, at this point even the CIA is publicly admitting that it is more likely than not that the lab leak theory is accurate...

The CIA has shifted its stance about the origin of the virus that causes Covid-19, NBC News reported on Saturday. The intelligence agency now believes that the coronavirus escaped from a Chinese lab, a shift from its previous stance, in which it did not take a position.

"CIA assesses with low confidence that a research-related origin of the COVID-19 pandemic is more likely than a natural origin based on the available body of reporting," a CIA spokesperson said in a statement to NBC News.

#2 MKUltra

For decades, anyone that went on the air and talked about MKUltra was considered to be a nut.

But now hundreds of government documents prove that this CIA mind control program really did exist...

Newly compiled records are spilling the beans on one of the CIA's most notorious and shadowy programs: MKUltra, a wild attempt to develop mind control techniques through drugs, hypnosis, and psychological manipulation.

The collection was published by the Digital National Security Archive of The George Washington University in December 2024, detailing more than 1,200 documents on the CIA's foray into behavioral and mind control experiments from 1953 until the 1970s.

*Much of the information comes from records gathered by John Marks, a former State Department official who initiated the first Freedom of Information Act requests on the topic and authored the 1979 book The Search for the Manchurian Candidate.*

We are actually very fortunate that these documents still exist, because in 1973 the director of the CIA specifically ordered that all records related to MKUltra must be destroyed...

In 1973, the director of the CIA, Richard Helms, ordered that all documents related to MKUltra be destroyed. However, a cache documents was discovered following a freedom of information request in 1977, which led to Senate hearings. MKUltra was declassified in 2001.

#3 Fluoride In Our Drinking Water Is Bad

For ages, authorities insisted that putting fluoride in our drinking water was good for us. But now a federal judge has ruled that there is evidence that fluoride in the water could harm the intellectual development of our children. The following comes from CNN...

A federal judge has ordered the US Environmental Protection Agency to further regulate fluoride in drinking water because high levels could pose a risk to the intellectual development of children.

US District Judge Edward Chen cautioned that it's not certain that the amount of fluoride typically added to water is causing lower IQ in kids, but he concluded that mounting research points to an unreasonable risk that it could be. He ordered the EPA to take steps to lower that risk, but didn't say what those measures should be.

#4 There Are Cancer Causing Chemicals In Our Drinking Water

Over the past several years, the mainstream media has actually begun reporting on all of the nasty things that are showing up in the water that is coming out of our taps.

In fact, a study that was conducted in 2019 actually found 22 separate carcinogens in our drinking water...

- Increased cancer risks were linked to 22 carcinogens found in the drinking water.
- Contaminants included arsenic; radioactive materials, such as uranium and radium; and disinfectant byproducts, which are substances produced when chlorine and other additives are used in the treatment process.

- Systems that rely on groundwater sources, such as aquifers, have higher concentrations of arsenic and radioactive materials and contribute to a higher risk of cancer.
- Systems that rely on surface water sources, such as reservoirs, have a lower risk, but serve larger populations.
- Water systems where droughts are more common may pose a higher risk, in part because drier conditions create an environment where contaminants become concentrated as water levels are reduced.

#5 The “Dumbing Down” Of America

For a lot of years, many of us in the alternative media have been talking about the “dumbing down” of America, but the mainstream media has continued to defend our system of education.

Unfortunately, it has become exceedingly clear that our kids are not alright. The following comes from the Wall Street Journal...

The reading skills of American students are deteriorating further, according to new national test scores that show no improvement in a yearslong slide.

The 67% of eighth-graders who scored at a basic or better reading level in 2024 was the lowest share since testing began in 1992, results from a closely watched federal exam show. Only 60% of fourth-graders hit that benchmark, nearing record lows.

The declines started before the pandemic, continued during it, and have persisted since.

#6 Prescription Drugs Kill Large Numbers Of Americans Every Single Year

For decades, alternative health practitioners and “conspiracy theorists” have been asserting that negative reactions to prescription drugs are one of the leading causes of death in the United States. Thankfully, the mainstream media has been forced to admit this as well. The following comes from a Vanity Fair article entitled “Deadly Medicine”...

Prescription drugs kill some 200,000 Americans every year. Will that number go up, now that most clinical trials are conducted overseas—on sick Russians, homeless Poles, and slum-dwelling Chinese—in places where regulation is virtually nonexistent, the F.D.A. doesn't reach, and "mistakes" can end up in pauper's graves?

#7 Aspartame Is Not Good For Our Health

Many of us have been warning about aspartame for ages, but the mainstream media just kept defending it. Well, after reviewing the evidence the International Agency for Research on Cancer was forced to classify aspartame as "possibly carcinogenic to humans"...

Assessments of the health impacts of the non-sugar sweetener aspartame are released today by the International Agency for Research on Cancer (IARC) and the World Health Organization (WHO) and the Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) Joint Expert Committee on Food Additives (JECFA). Citing "limited evidence" for carcinogenicity in humans, IARC classified aspartame as possibly carcinogenic to humans (IARC Group 2B) and JECFA reaffirmed the acceptable daily intake of 40 mg/kg body weight.

#8 Operation Paperclip

Did you know that hundreds of Nazi scientists were smuggled out of Germany and brought to the United States in the aftermath of World War II?

And did you know that many of those scientists were used "to help develop America's arsenal of rockets and other biological and chemical weapons"?...

As World War II was entering its final stages, American and British organizations teamed up to scour occupied Germany for as much military, scientific and technological development research as they could uncover.

Trailing behind Allied combat troops, groups such as the Combined Intelligence Objectives Subcommittee (CIOS) began confiscating war-related documents and materials and interrogating scientists as German research facilities were seized by Allied forces. One enlightening discovery—recovered from a toilet at Bonn University—was the Osenberg List: a catalogue of scientists and engineers that had been put to work for the Third Reich.

In a covert affair originally dubbed Operation Overcast but later renamed Operation Paperclip, roughly 1,600 of these German scientists (along with their families) were brought to the United States to work on America’s behalf during the Cold War. The program was run by the newly-formed Joint Intelligence Objectives Agency (JIOA), whose goal was to harness German intellectual resources to help develop America’s arsenal of rockets and other biological and chemical weapons, and to ensure such coveted information did not fall into the hands of the Soviet Union.

I could list many other examples, but I think that you probably get my point by now.

Just because something is labeled a “conspiracy theory” does not mean that you can automatically dismiss it.

In fact, many of those that love to accuse others of spreading “disinformation” are some of the biggest liars of all.

In this day and age, it is so important to think for yourself and it is so important to know why you believe what you believe.

Let me give you a piece of advice that really helped me.

Question everything.

Hold on to what is true, and discard what is false.

We live at a time when deception is running rampant, and it is getting worse with each passing day.

The Rise of the Immortal Dictator: What Will AI Mean for Freedom and Government?

John & Nisha Whitehead

“If one company or small group of people manages to develop godlike digital superintelligence, they could take over the world. At least when there’s an evil dictator, that human is going to die. But for an AI, there would be no death. It would live forever. And then you’d have an immortal dictator from which we can never escape.”—Elon Musk (2018)

The Deep State is about to go turbocharged.

While the news media fixates on the extent to which Project 2025 may be the Trump Administration’s playbook for locking down the nation, there is a more subversive power play taking place under cover of Trump’s unique brand of circus politics.

Take a closer look at what’s unfolding, and you will find that all appearances to the contrary, Trump isn’t planning to do away with the Deep State. Rather, he was hired by the Deep State to usher in the golden age of AI.

Get ready for Surveillance State 2.0.

To achieve this turbocharged surveillance state, the government is turning to its most powerful weapon yet: artificial intelligence. AI, with its ability to learn, adapt, and operate at speeds unimaginable to humans, is poised to become the engine of this new world order.

Over the course of 70 years, the technology has developed so rapidly that it has gone from early computers exhibiting a primitive form of artificial intelligence to machine learning (AI systems that learn from historic data) to deep learning (machine learning that mimics the human brain) to generative AI, which can create original content, i.e., it appears able to think for itself.

What we are approaching is the point of no return.

In tech speak, this point of no return is more aptly termed “singularity,” the point at which AI eclipses its human handlers and becomes all-powerful. Elon Musk has predicted that singularity could happen by 2026. AI scientist Ray Kurzweil imagines it happening it closer to 2045.

While the scientific community has a lot to say about the world-altering impact of artificial intelligence on every aspect of our lives, little has been said about its growing role in government and its oppressive effect on our freedoms, especially “the core democratic principles of privacy, autonomy, equality, the political process, and the rule of law.”

According to a report from Accenture, it is estimated that across both the public and private sectors, generative AI has the potential to automate a significant portion of jobs across various sectors.

Here's a thought: what if Trump's pledge to cut the federal work force isn't really about eliminating government bureaucracy but outsourcing it to the AI tech sector?

Certainly, Trump has made no secret of his plans to make AI a priority. Indeed, Trump signed the first-ever Executive Order on AI in 2019. More recently, Trump issued an executive order giving the technology sector a green light to develop and deploy AI without any guardrails in place to limit the risks it might pose to U.S. national security, the economy, public health or safety.

President Biden was no better, mind you. His executive order, which Trump repealed, merely instructed the tech sector to share the results of AI safety tests with the U.S. government.

Yet following much the same pattern that we saw with the rollout of drones, while the government has been quick to avail itself of AI technology, it has done little to nothing to ensure that rights of the American people are protected.

Indeed, we are altogether lacking any guardrails for transparency, accountability and adherence to the rule of law when it comes to the government's use of AI.

As Karl Manheim and Lyric Kaplan point out in a chilling article in the Yale Journal of Law & Technology about the risks to privacy and democracy posed by AI, "[a]rtificial intelligence is the most disruptive technology of the modern era... Its impact is likely to dwarf even the development of the internet as it enters every corner of our lives... Advances in AI herald not just a new age in computing, but also present new dangers to social values and constitutional rights. The threat to privacy from social media algorithms and the Internet of Things is well known. What is less appreciated is the even greater threat that AI poses to democracy itself."

Cue the rise of "digital authoritarianism" or "algocracy—rule by algorithm."

In an algocracy, "Mark Zuckerberg and Sundar Pichai, CEOs of Facebook and Google, have more control over Americans' lives and futures than do the representatives we elect."

Digital authoritarianism, as the Center for Strategic and International Studies cautions, involves the use of information technology to surveil, repress, and manipulate the populace, endangering human rights and civil liberties, and co-opting and corrupting the foundational principles of democratic and open societies, "including freedom of movement, the right to speak freely and express political dissent, and the right to personal privacy, online and off."

How do we protect our privacy against the growing menace of overreach and abuse by a technological sector working with the government?

The ability to do so may already be out of our hands.

In 2024, at least 37 federal government agencies ranging from the Departments of Homeland Security and Veterans Affairs to Health and Human Services reported more than 1700 uses of AI in carrying out their work, double from the year before. That does not even begin to touch on agencies that did not report their usage, or usage at the state and local levels.

Of those 1700 cases at the federal level, 227 were labeled rights- or safety-impacting.

A particularly disturbing example of how AI is being used by government agencies in rights- and safety-impacting scenarios comes from an investigative report by The Washington Post on how law enforcement agencies across the nation are using “artificial intelligence tools in a way they were never intended to be used: as a shortcut to finding and arresting suspects without other evidence.”

This is what is referred to within tech circles as “automation bias,” a tendency to blindly trust decisions made by powerful software, ignorant to its risks and limitations. In one particular case, police used AI-powered facial recognition technology to arrest and jail a 29-year-old man for brutally assaulting a security guard. It would take Christopher Gatlin two years to clear his name.

Gatlin is one of at least eight known cases nationwide in which police reliance on AI facial recognition software has resulted in resulted in wrongful arrests arising from an utter disregard for basic police work (such as checking alibis, collecting evidence, corroborating DNA and fingerprint evidence, ignoring suspects’ physical characteristics) and the need to meet constitutional standards of due process and probable cause. According to The Washington Post, “Asian and Black people were up to 100 times as likely to be misidentified by some software as White men.”

The numbers of cases in which AI is contributed to false arrests and questionable police work is likely much higher, given the extent to which police agencies across the country are adopting the technology and will only rise in the wake of the Trump Administration’s intent to shut down law enforcement oversight and policing reforms.

“How do I beat a machine?” asked one man who was wrongly arrested by police for assaulting a bus driver based on an incorrect AI match.

It is becoming all but impossible to beat the AI machine.

When used by agents of the police state, it leaves “we the people” even more vulnerable.

So where do we go from here?

For the Trump Administration, it appears to be full steam ahead, starting with Stargate, a $500 billion AI infrastructure venture aimed at building massive data centers. Initial reports suggest that the AI data centers could be tied to digital health records and used to develop a cancer vaccine. Of course, massive health data centers for use by AI will mean that one’s health records are fair game for any and all sorts of identification, tracking and flagging.

But that’s just the tip of the iceberg.

The surveillance state, combined with AI, is creating a world in which there's nowhere to run and nowhere to hide. We're all presumed guilty until proven innocent now.

Thanks to the 24/7 surveillance being carried out by the government's sprawling spy network of fusion centers, we are all just sitting ducks, waiting to be tagged, flagged, targeted, monitored, manipulated, investigated, interrogated, heckled and generally harassed by agents of the American police state.

Without having ever knowingly committed a crime or been convicted of one, you and your fellow citizens have likely been assessed for behaviors the government might consider devious, dangerous or concerning; assigned a threat score based on your associations, activities and viewpoints; and catalogued in a government database according to how you should be approached by police and other government agencies based on your particular threat level.

Before long, every household in America will be flagged as a threat and assigned a threat score.

It's just a matter of time before you find yourself wrongly accused, investigated and confronted by police based on a data-driven algorithm or risk assessment culled together by a computer program run by artificial intelligence.

It's a setup ripe for abuse.

Writing for the Yale Journal, Manheim and Kaplan conclude that “[h]umans may not be at risk as a species, but we are surely at risk in terms of our democratic institutions and values.”

Privacy—Manheim and Kaplan succinctly describe it as “the right to make personal decisions for oneself, the right to keep one’s personal information confidential, and the right to be left alone are all ingredients of the fundamental right of privacy”— is especially at risk.

Indeed, with every new AI surveillance technology that is adopted and deployed without any regard for privacy, Fourth Amendment rights and due process, the rights of the citizenry are being marginalized, undermined and eviscerated.

We teeter on the cusp of a cultural, technological and societal revolution the likes of which have never been seen before.

AI surveillance is already re-orienting our world into one in which freedom is almost unrecognizable by doing what the police state lacks the manpower and resources to do efficiently or effectively: be everywhere, watch everyone and everything, monitor, identify, catalogue, cross-check, cross-reference, and collude.

As Eric Schmidt, the former Google CEO remarked, “We know where you are. We know where you’ve been. We can more or less know what you’re thinking about... Your digital identity will live forever... because there’s no delete button.”

The ramifications of any government wielding such unregulated, unaccountable power are chilling, as AI surveillance provides the ultimate means of repression and control for tyrants and benevolent dictators alike.

Indeed, China's social credit system, where citizens are assigned scores based on their behavior and compliance, offers a glimpse into this dystopian future.

This is not a battle against technology itself, but against its misuse. It's a fight to retain our humanity, our dignity, and our freedom in the face of unprecedented technological power. It's a struggle to ensure that AI serves us, not the other way around.

Faced with this looming threat, the time to act is now, before the lines between citizen and subject, between freedom and control, become irrevocably blurred.

The future of freedom depends on it.

So demand transparency. Demand accountability.

Demand an Electronic Bill of Rights that protects "we the people" from the encroaching surveillance state.

We need safeguards in place to ensure the right to data ownership and control (the right to know what data is being collected about them, how it's being used, who has access to it, and the right to be "forgotten"); the right to algorithmic transparency (to understand how algorithms that affect them make decisions, particularly in areas like loan applications, job hiring, and criminal justice) and due process accountability; the right to privacy and data security, including restrictions on government and corporate use of AI-powered surveillance technologies, particularly facial recognition and predictive policing; the right to digital self-determination (freedom from automated discrimination based on algorithmic profiling) and the ability to manage and control one's online identity and reputation; and effective mechanisms to seek redress for harms caused by AI systems.

AI deployed without any safeguards in place to protect against overreach and abuse, especially within government agencies, has the potential to become what Elon Musk described as an "immortal dictator," one that lives forever and from which there is no escape.

Whatever you choose to call it—the police state, the Deep State, the surveillance state—this "immortal dictator" will be the future face of the government unless we rein it in now.

Under Tim Walz, Minnesota Banned Christians From Teaching In Public Schools

BY: JOY PULLMANN

Walz is poised to make similar bigoted, totalitarian, and unconstitutional policies across the United States should he be elected vice president.

JOY PULLMANN

Effective July 2025, teacher licensing rules passed last year in Minnesota under Democrat Gov. Tim Walz will ban practicing Christians, Jews, and Muslims from teaching in public schools. Walz is now the presidential running mate of current U.S. Vice President Kamala Harris. His resume includes a stint as a high school social studies teacher who sponsored a student queer sex club in 1999.

Starting next July, Minnesota agencies controlled by Walz appointees will require teacher license applicants to affirm transgenderism and race Marxism. Without a teaching license, individuals cannot work in Minnesota public schools, nor in the private schools that require such licenses.

The latest version of the regulations requires teachers to “affirm” students’ “gender identity” and “sexual orientation” to receive a Minnesota teaching license:

The teacher fosters an environment that ensures student identities such as race/ethnicity, national origin, language, sex and gender, gender identity, sexual orientation, physical/developmental/emotional ability, socioeconomic class, and religious beliefs are historically and socially contextualized, affirmed, and incorporated into a learning environment where students are empowered to learn and contribute as their whole selves (emphasis added).

Last spring, administrative law judges finally approved these pending changes. The Federalist reported one month before they were finalized. Universities are also affected: starting in 2025, they must either train their teaching students to fulfill these anti-Christian requirements or be banned from offering state licensing — and thus the ticket to the vast majority of teaching jobs — to their students.

Since 2020 in Minnesota, teachers renewing their licenses, which is usually required every five to seven years, must demonstrate “cultural competency” similar to the requirements imposed in 2025 on new teaching licensees. Teachers renewing their licensing must “Show[] evidence of self-reflection and discussion of” topics that include “Gender Identity, Including Transgender Students” and “Sexual Orientation.” They must also show they understand “bias” in themselves and their students related to race, sexual orientation, gender identity, and other cultural Marxist categories.

Queer Totalitarianism Forces Religion Into the Closet

Some Christian universities in the state will obey these regulations, said Doug Seaton, founder and president of the nonprofit Upper Midwest Law Center, located in Minneapolis. Some Christian universities will not, but so far those UMLC has reached out to that plan to disobey these state commands to violate their faith will do so quietly and only sue when the state finds and punishes them, Seaton said.

“Some are not willing to do it [file a lawsuit] until they actually have their college programs tagged for noncompliance or their graduates actually not licensed as a consequence of not adhering to these standards,” he said in a phone interview. This comes even though UMLC, as a public interest law firm, would undertake the litigation and pay the vast majority of its expenses thanks to their donors. Three Minnesota Christian universities The Federalist reached out to did not return inquiries on whether they would enforce the new licensing rules.

Faithful members of the world’s largest and oldest religions cannot in good conscience “affirm” non-heterosexual sexual orientations and gender identities. Christians who do so publicly deny their faith, something Jesus Christ said endangers a person’s soul and eternal bliss after death: “Therefore whoever confesses Me before men, him I will also confess before My Father who is in heaven. But whoever denies Me before men, him I will also deny before My Father who is in heaven” (Matthew 10:32, 33).

Minnesota’s teacher requirements therefore force Christians, Muslims, Jews, and adherents to other religions to violate their faith and endanger their hopes of eternal life in order to work in government-run schools.

Forcing people to testify to beliefs they don’t hold, often called compelled speech, is clearly unconstitutional, he said: “They’re essentially requiring people to affirm these ideas that they don’t really believe, in many cases, as a condition of being a public school teacher or being part of a program to be a licensed public school teacher. You can’t force that kind of speech, you can’t require adherence to ideas that aren’t believed.”

The 13-member board that made these changes is appointed by the governor, whom for the last six years has been Walz. So, Walz is poised to make similar bigoted, totalitarian, and unconstitutional policies across the United States should he be elected vice president.

Marinating Kids In Anti-American Propaganda

As I reported last year, Minnesota’s new teacher requirements also “require teachers to agree that the taxpayers supplying their salaries and the people who created the school system that will employ them are racists, and affirm other cultural Marxist beliefs.”

“For example, Standard 6C requires that ‘The teacher understands the historical foundations of education in Minnesota ... that have and continue to create inequitable opportunities, experiences, and outcomes for learners ... especially for ... students historically denied access, underserved, or underrepresented on the basis of race ... gender, sexual orientation.’” That “standard” remains in the latest version of the regulations, under the same number.

Recently in The Wall Street Journal, Katherine Kersten examined curricular changes Minnesota is making under Walz’s administration in “ethnic studies” that mirror these changes to teacher licensing requirements.

Mr. Walz signed the law establishing this initiative in 2023. The department’s standards and benchmarks, approved in January, require first-graders to ‘identify examples of ethnicity, equality, liberation and systems of power’ and ‘use those examples to construct meanings for those terms.’

Fourth-graders must ‘identify the processes and impacts of colonization and examine how discrimination and the oppression of various racial and ethnic groups have produced resistance movements.’ High-school students are told to ‘develop an analysis of racial capitalism’ and ‘anti-Blackness’ and are taught to view themselves as members of ‘racialized hierarchies’ based on ‘dominant European beauty standards.’

Walz’s first executive order as governor was to install a “diversity, equity, and inclusion,” or DEI, council. Former Minnesota state legislator Allen Quist notes that “The radical Walz administration Department of Human Rights has also forced school districts to report student discipline by race and require equal outcomes (equity) in discipline. The results have been horrific chaos and violence.”

During Walz’s governorship, student achievement in Minnesota has gone from among the best in the nation to declining more sharply than anywhere else in the nation, according to the Minneapolis-based Center for the American Experiment. The most recent scores show Minnesota fourth graders dipping below the national average in reading for the first time ever recorded on the well-respected Nation’s Report Card.

Research has found for decades that there is no link between teacher certification and student achievement. People who enter teaching with a degree other than in education tend to have significantly higher personal and student academic performance.

Public School Used Fifth Graders to Groom 5-year-olds

Todd Starness

A public school in California used fifth graders to groom kindergarteners during a bizarre transgender assignment that included a storybook about a little boy who wears a dress. And the district refused to let parents opt-their children out of the lesson.

In May 2024, a fifth-grade teacher at La Costa Heights Elementary School read aloud the book, My Shadow is Pink, which urges children to question their own gender identity.

The book features a boy who sees his shadow as pink, which the book describes as “your inner-most you.” He then wears a dress to school and his dad changes his beliefs and puts on a dress too.

The children at La Costa Heights Elementary School were forced to watch a read-aloud video of the book with their kindergartener “buddy” as part of the school’s mentoring program. The older students had to ask the kindergartner what color “represents” him and draw the kindergartener’s shadow in chalk.

Though La Costa Heights and the teachers advised parents about the “buddy” program, they never notified parents that “My Shadow is Pink” would be used in the “buddy” program. In fact, the entire lesson was omitted from the male teacher’s weekly newsletter to parents.

Parents requested a notice and opt-outs for similar lessons in the future, but the district turned down their requests.

First Liberty Institute, one of the nation’s most prominent religious liberty law firms, filed a complaint in federal court on behalf of several parents in the school district.

“No child should be forced to speak a message that violates his religious convictions,” said Kayla Toney, an associate counsel for First Liberty Institute. “It is unconscionable that teachers would force Christian elementary students to teach five-year-olds about gender identity in a way that violates their faith.”

According to the complaint:

Despite multiple requests from S.E. and P.D.’s parents, plaintiffs Carlos and Jennifer Encinas and Tom and Rebecca Doe, as well as other parents at La Costa Heights, the School District has steadfastly refused to grant an opt-out or to give notice of its instruction and programming promoting gender identity views that conflict with parental religious beliefs, except for its health unit.

While the School District offers opt-outs from other types of instruction and curriculum for a wide variety of reasons, it refuses opt-outs from gender identity instruction outside of the formal health unit context.

The National Center for Law & Policy is also involved in the case.

“Parents have the right to know what their children are being taught in school, especially when that material goes against their sincerely held religious beliefs. The District is attempting to evade state law that allows parents to opt their children out of sexual education by teaching the same material in other classes,” said NCLP president Dean Broyles.

The U.S. Constitution affords an American man the right to wear high heels and ladies undergarments. You may vehemently disagree with that sort of lifestyle, but that is their right.

But we should all be able to agree that the children should be off-limits and any attempt to groom a child should be illegal. The administrators, teachers and school board members who abused the children within the Encinitas Union School District should be fired and they should face child sex crime charges.

'Being in shock': School takes action after teen was forced to read porn out loud in class

By Bob Unruh

A school in Nevada has agreed to settle a lawsuit brought on behalf of a child in the district who was forced by officials to read pornography – out loud – in class.

The resolution to the case is described by the American Center for Law and Justice as a "significant victory."

The basis of the lawsuit was that officials in Nevada's Clark County School District had forced a child to perform a pornographic monologue in a theater class, the legal team explained.

"After significant testimony was revealed in depositions, CCSD settled with us, affirming the rights of parents and students in the face of inappropriate educational content," the ACLJ announced.

The case was over the forced performance by a 15-year-old student, and a judge had rejected the school's demand that the case be dismissed.

The next step, then, was discovery, during which even school officials expressed shock over what had happened.

One, for example, said, "The content that [the client] performed, I believe, was inappropriate. ... The overall content and language was not something that I felt should have been there."

And another admitted, "I do remember the first time I read it, being in shock. ... What was written was not appropriate to be read and performed in a school setting. ... And so it crossed the boundary."

School officials said even if parental permission had been requested, the reading still "never" would have been approved.

The student's mother became the plaintiff in the lawsuit, and explained she was forced into the action in order to document that her daughter "had nothing to do with creating this"

The district, on social media, had offered a misleading statement, that, "The Clark County School District is investigating the circumstances surrounding a class assignment consisting of a student-generated writing exercise that produced content not conducive to student instruction."

That resulted in a hate campaign against the student.

The student's parents responded, "This was an especially difficult time for our daughter. The reason her Dad didn't come to the school board meeting with me was that he was deployed overseas with the U.S. military for a year, then sent to Ft. Bliss for an additional year & a half, recovering from injuries. As any military family will tell you, life can be very difficult for the kids whose parents are deployed. We try to do everything we can to keep their spirits up, but it's not always easy. Her teacher knew this, but I guess it didn't matter to her, and we feel she took advantage of a 15-year-old who just wanted to be a good student and get good grades. Our daughter never wanted to be in the public spotlight for something like this, just like most teens would not want that, so this was all very overwhelming and not an easy journey for her."

The student now is in her first year of college, writing and singing her own songs.

The ACLJ noted that the Nevada legislature subsequently adopted a law that defines "sexual impropriety" by a teacher to include "sharing pornographic or sexually explicit materials," which is expected to allow teachers in future situations to be held accountable.

Details of the settlement were not disclosed.

Minnesota School District Bans Preachers from FCA Meetings

TODD STARNES

A Minnesota school district has banned pastors from attending Fellowship of Christian Athletes meetings.

Pequot Lakes Public Schools says non-school adults may not attend FCA meetings on a regular basis. They also said all clubs must be student-led and all meetings must be led by students.

No ministers allowed.

The new rule was issued after the Freedom From Religion Foundation filed a formal complaint – accusing a local youth pastor of proselytizing at the middle school FCA meetings.

They accused the middle school of using FCA meetings as a recruiting ground for a religious mission. They further contended that the youth pastor broke the Equal Access Act.

“Schools cannot constitutionally allow religious organizations to treat schools as a recruiting ground for their religious mission,” FFRF’s Kyle Steinberg wrote to the district.

For the record there’s nothing unconstitutional about a Christian club inviting a Christian minister to speak to Christian students.

“A pastor or other evangelists may not be allowed unobstructed access to a captive audience of public school students,” FFRF’s Annie Laurie Gaylor states. “The district has made the right call to abide by the Constitution.”

If the atheists want equal access – they can start their own club. But let’s get serious – nobody wants to fellowship with a bunch of godless, heathen atheists.

And everybody knows the Christians serve better snacks.

A Minnesota school district has banned pastors from attending Fellowship of Christian Athletes meetings.

Pequot Lakes Public Schools says non-school adults may not attend FCA meetings on a regular basis. They also said all clubs must be student-led and all meetings must be led by students.

No ministers allowed.

The new rule was issued after the Freedom From Religion Foundation filed a formal complaint – accusing a local youth pastor of proselytizing at the middle school FCA meetings.

They accused the middle school of using FCA meetings as a recruiting ground for a religious mission. They further contended that the youth pastor broke the Equal Access Act.

“Schools cannot constitutionally allow religious organizations to treat schools as a recruiting ground for their religious mission,” FFRF’s Kyle Steinberg wrote to the district.

For the record there’s nothing unconstitutional about a Christian club inviting a Christian minister to speak to Christian students.

“A pastor or other evangelists may not be allowed unobstructed access to a captive audience of public school students,” FFRF’s Annie Laurie Gaylor states. “The district has made the right call to abide by the Constitution.”

If the atheists want equal access – they can start their own club. But let’s get serious – nobody wants to fellowship with a bunch of godless, heathen atheists.

And everybody knows the Christians serve better snacks.

School Board Runs from Angry Parents Who Caught Them Letting 5-Year-Olds See Bondage Gear

Trent Walker

Parents armed with verbal pitchforks and torches sent woke administrators cowering away at a school board meeting in New York state Tuesday night.

The parents of Penfield Central School were outraged that the school had exposed young children to an obscene book titled “The Rainbow Parade” by Emily Neilson, according to the U.K.’s Daily Mail.

The book is about a young girl and her two moms attending a pride parade. Among the illustrations included are two men in bondage gear holding hands, alongside other queer spectacles.

The controversy arose after a kindergartener reportedly came home with the book, which is available in the school’s library, according to RochesterFirst.com.

Parents expressed their indignation with school officials.

“If you think that that’s appropriate for children to see, then there’s something wrong with you,” parent John Feathers said, according to the Mail.

“You need to have a mental evaluation. There’s no reason that should be in the schools whatsoever at all,” he added.

School Board President Emily Roberts tried but failed to maintain control of the meeting as parents objected throughout the session.

“We have the policy in place. The procedures in place to object.” Roberts said, according to WHEC-TV in New York.

“That is not how you object,” she said to the disgruntled crowd, asking them to stop interrupting. “We will ask those people who cannot do that to be removed. We are here at our board meeting conducting our business.”

That particular comment prompted boos from parents.

“It’s our board meeting,” one woman among the parents yelled.

Shortly after, Roberts called a recess, and the school board members retreated, further agitating parents.

“They’re just leaving?” one parent said. “How do you just leave a school board meeting with a packed room?”

As for the book, it will remain in the library, as there has not yet been a formal complaint to have it removed, a school official said, according to RochesterFirst.com.

Texas School District Reverses Course on Bible Ban

TODD STARNES

A Texas school district felt the wrath of every church-going citizen in the Panhandle after they compared the Holy Bible to pornography and banned God's Word from school libraries.

Canyon Independent School District Supt. Darryl Flusche told parents in an email that he had ordered librarians to remove the Good Book in compliance with a new state law called the "Restricting Explicit and Adult-Designated Educational Resources" act.

The law is aimed at removing sexually explicit material from school libraries – especially materials that "describe or portray sexual conduct...in a patently offensive way."

"This standard for library content prohibits books that have one instance of sexual content as described above," the superintendent wrote in a letter to parents. "Therefore, HB 900 doesn't allow numerous books, including the full text of the Bible, to be available in the school library."

Parents and preachers showed up at a recent school board meeting to voice their extreme displeasure.

"In a day when we are needing security guards and bulletproof windows and doors, I think having the Word of God available to our children cannot only be preventative to violence, but also provide comfort and a sense of security in a chaotic world," parent Regina Kiehne told the school board. "It seems absurd to me that the Good Book was thrown out with the bad books."

State Rep. Jared Patterson, a Republican co-author of the bill, blasted the superintendent's decision to yank the Bible from the book shelves.

"The superintendent's position here was indefensible and appeared to be a result of open hostility toward folks who want sexually explicit content removed from public schools. HB 900 clearly protects the Bible and all religious texts," he wrote on X.

Sweating Like Sinners in Church

Patterson then fired off a letter to the school superintendent warning that his actions may have violated the law.

“The Bible is the most important and most read book in history, and removing it does a grave injustice to the students in your care,” the lawmaker wrote. “Let me be very clear: the Bible and other religious texts are protected under HB 900. Any assertion to the contrary is either rooted in ignorance of state law or an open hostility to the will of the people.”

That letter left the superintendent and school board members sweating like sinners in church. And after that “Come to Jesus” board meeting — they reinstated the Bible.

“After receiving clarification from Representative (Jared) Patterson regarding library content, we reevaluated the guidelines and are pleased to have the Bible available in each of our Canyon ISD libraries,” the district said in a statement to television station KVII.

Needless to say, banning the Bible in Texas was one of the biggest boneheaded decisions made in the Lone Star State. It ranks right up there with letting men become Dallas Cowboy cheerleaders or saying brisket really isn’t barbecue.

Figliola v. The School Board of The City of Harrisonburg

Description: The Harrisonburg City Public School Board in Virginia is usurping parents' right to direct the upbringing of their children and forcing school staff to violate their religious beliefs by affirming the board's view on gender identity. Upon a child's request, school district policy requires staff to immediately begin using opposite-sex pronouns and forbids staff from sharing information with parents about their child's request, instead instructing staff to mislead and deceive parents.

Deborah Figliola, a teacher in the Harrisonburg school district in Virginia.

Virginia school district respects teachers' religious freedom

ADF attorneys favorably settle case with Harrisonburg school board, officials agree they will not require teachers to use pronouns that are inconsistent with a student's sex

Tuesday, Dec 10, 2024

HARRISONBURG, Va. – To settle a lawsuit brought by Alliance Defending Freedom attorneys representing three Virginia teachers, the Harrisonburg City School Board agreed to respect the teachers’ constitutionally protected right to do their job in accordance with their religious beliefs.

In the order resolving the case, the school board agreed that Deborah Figliola, Kristine Marsh, and Laura Nelson do not have to ask students to share their pronouns and the teachers need not necessarily use pronouns inconsistent with students’ biological sex. The school district also acknowledged that it “does not support hiding or withholding information from parents” and it will continue to inform staff that similar religious accommodations are available to employees.

“Deb, Kris, and Laura—like all teachers—are protected under the Constitution to do their job in alignment with their religious beliefs, including how they refer to their students and the vital information they share with parents,” said ADF Senior Counsel Kate Anderson, director of the ADF Center for Parental Rights, who argued before the Rockingham County Circuit Court Tuesday. “We are pleased to favorably resolve this case on behalf of our clients and ensure that the Harrisonburg City School Board will respect every teacher’s right to speak consistent with her faith.”

“As teachers, we care deeply about the children entrusted to our care,” Figliola said. “We could not idly stand by while the schools’ administration enforced a policy with a radical, one-size-fits-all approach to students struggling with their gender, and that allowed parents to be pushed out of the picture. We’re thrilled for this legal victory that allows religious educators in the Harrisonburg school district to do the job we love, in a manner true to our faith.”

Previously, in a series of on-the-job trainings related to the school board’s nondiscrimination policy, the board directed teachers to “immediately implement” these practices: (1) to ask students’ “preferred” names and pronouns; (2) to always use them, even when contrary to a student’s sex; and, (3) to do so without notifying parents or seeking their consent. And the nondiscrimination policy threatened discipline—including termination—for noncompliance.

The teachers filed the lawsuit in June 2022 challenging the board’s actions as violations of the Virginia Constitution’s Free Speech Clause, the Virginia Religious Freedom Restoration Act, and other legal provisions by compelling them to speak a message to which they object.

ADF attorneys filed a dismissal of the case, Figliola v. The School Board of the City of Harrisonburg, Tuesday.

In a similar case litigated by ADF attorneys, the West Point School Board in Virginia agreed to pay $575,000 in damages and attorneys’ fees to settle a lawsuit brought by a former high school teacher who was fired for avoiding the use of pronouns to refer to one of his students. The favorable settlement followed the Virginia Supreme Court’s landmark decision affirming that the Virginia Constitution contains robust free speech and free exercise protections for public employees.

• State approves Bible curriculum for elementary school students

Optional lessons would allow kids 'to better understand the connection of history, art, community, literature, and religion on pivotal events'

By Jaryn Crouson

The Texas school board approved a measure Friday allowing lessons on the Bible to be taught in elementary schools.

The Texas State Board of Education narrowly approved the measure in a 8-7 vote, allowing schools to optionally implement Bible-based curriculum as soon as 2025, according to NBC News. Schools that choose to teach such lessons will receive additional funds from the state.

"The materials will ... allow our students to better understand the connection of history, art, community, literature, and religion on pivotal events like the signing of the U.S. Constitution, the Civil Rights Movement, and the American Revolution," Republican Gov. Greg Abbott said in a statement earlier this year, according to the Texas Tribune.

Texas Democrats bashed the school board's decision in a press release following the vote, saying the curriculum undermines "religious freedom" and that "religious doctrine should stay in our places of worship where it belongs."

Oklahoma in June began requiring Bible lessons be taught in all schools, and Louisiana mandated that all classrooms must display the Ten Commandments, though the law has faced legal challenges.

3 Teen Robbers Shot by Intended Victim

SMG NEWS WIRE

Four teenagers tried to rob an elderly Houston man early Thursday morning. All four of the teens were armed with weapons. And so was the elderly man. It turns out the young thugs fooled around and quickly found out. Three of the four were shot – one is in critical condition.

The intended victim was not injured and he's cooperating with law enforcement. There's no word just yet on whether he will face charges.

According to the Harris County Sheriff's Office, several children between the ages of 12 and 15 years old tried to rob the man with what appeared to be a pistol.

Deputies said the man then got a weapon and fired, hitting and injuring at least three boys. All three of them were transported to the hospital. At least one of them is in critical condition, officials said.

The elderly gunman deserves a commendation from City Hall for taking out a gang of thugs.

ABC13 spoke with neighbors, who said they heard at least 10 gunshots before checking to see what happened.

"I ran down to see what I could do to help. I looked at his face and said, "This is a baby. It's a child!" neighbor Bruce Bailey said.

No, sir. That was a criminal — a thugling.

Judge Rules That American Gun Makers Are Protected From Frivolous Lawsuits

by Bob Adelman

On Monday, a judge summarily dismissed a lawsuit instigated by the anti-gun Brady group through its legal arm, Brady Legal. The group sought to damage the American gun industry — specifically Smith & Wesson — claiming that S&W and many others named as defendants were somehow guilty in the synagogue shooting in Poway, California, in April 2019.

The shooter, John Earnest, used a semiautomatic rifle manufactured by S&W in killing one worshipper and wounding three others before being captured by police.

Earnest is now spending the rest of his life in prison without parole. But that didn't prevent Brady from trying to breach the wall protecting the American gun industry from frivolous (but expensive!) lawsuits. In June 2020, the group enlisted many of the survivors of the shooting in bringing a complaint that S&W, along with many enablers, designed, built, and marketed its rifle in such a way that it was party to the crime.

Incendiary Language

The Brady complaint used incendiary language, thinking perhaps such would be persuasive to California Superior Court Judge Wendy Behan:

The Shooter used a SMITH & WESSON M&P AR-15 style rifle (the “Rifle”) to engage in a mass shooting on April 27, 2019 — a military-style assault on the worshippers at the Chabad of Poway synagogue (the “Incident”). Plaintiffs were among the worshippers in the Chabad of Poway synagogue and were harmed in the attack.

The Incident was foreseeable.

The negligent and unlawful actions of Defendants ... enabled the Shooter to transform his dark fantasies into a lethal reality by designing, marketing, distributing, and ultimately placing in the Shooter's hands a highly lethal weapon — the Rifle.

According to the suit:

[S&W] negligently and intentionally designed and manufactured a military-style assault rifle that could easily be effective in mass attacks on people, and ... marketed its military-style assault rifle in a way that attracted impulsive young men with military complexes [?] who were particularly likely to be attracted to the unique ability of AR-15 style weapons [that were] unreasonably distributed and sold ... to the public without reasonable safeguards to keep [them] out of dangerous hands.

Judge Behan didn't buy any of it, stating, "The Court finds that the claims asserted are immune under the Protection of Lawful Commerce in Arms Act (PLCAA)."

Then, after reviewing the PLCAA for the benefit of Brady Legal, reminding them that Congress created broad immunity for firearm manufacturers to protect them from just such frivolous lawsuits as this one, she dismantled their arguments:

The undisputed evidence shows the rifle lacked any features that would classify it as an assault weapon, and there is no legal basis to claim it becomes one simply because it could be modified post-sale....

The evidence remains undisputed that Smith & Wesson ... manufactured the rifle as a semi-automatic firearm, and the shooter used the rifle as a semi-automatic firearm.

She dispensed with any notion that there existed a "causative" link between Smith & Wesson and the shooter's attack:

There is a significant causation issue.... Proximate cause requires a direct, unbroken link between the violation and the injury.... [T]he evidence shows that the shooter did not modify the rifle's grip to enable a rapid-fire shooting, making it unreasonable for a jury to conclude that his ability to modify the grip — something he did not do — was a factor in his attack on the synagogue.

Additionally, it is unjust to hold S&W liable for injuries stemming from a grip modification that played no role in the harm suffered by the plaintiffs.

Advertising Also Not Relevant

She then obliterated Brady's claim that S&W's advertising had something to do with the attack:

Plaintiffs claim that specific advertisements, such as "The Chosen One," falsely imply extensive use by police agencies, and suggest that S&W's marketing promotes unlawful use of its products....

The shooter was no doubt "aware of Smith & Wesson." ... After all, he purchased a S&W firearm. However, Plaintiffs make a leap in logic in arguing that the shooter's mere knowledge of the S&W brand shows he was motivated to act criminally....

[T]here is no evidence linking the shooter's actions directly to these advertisements.

After five short pages, Behan dismissed the complaint: "Based on the above, the Court finds in favor of [defendants] and GRANTS [them] summary judgment."

This ruling is relevant and timely. Next Friday the Supreme Court of the United States will determine whether it will hear Mexico's case against American gun makers, which uses the same lame arguments.

Mapping Gun Manufacturers By US State

BY TYLER DURDEN

Gun manufacturing in the U.S. has been increasing steadily in recent years, with a significant spike during the pandemic.

According to the Violence Policy Center, there are almost five times as many gun manufacturers as there are colleges in the country.

Which U.S. States Have the Most Gun Manufacturers?

While most production is concentrated in the hands of a few key players, a majority of gun manufacturers actually don't operate out of big commercial facilities, but instead, out of homes or offices.

Texas, Florida, and Arizona, the three states with the most gun manufacturers in 2022, all have business-friendly policies including low or no income taxes and fewer regulations, as well as strong gun cultures.

Large firearms companies have also increasingly chosen to move their headquarters and production to red states, especially in the South.

Other Southern red states are capitalizing on this trend. In Oklahoma, just north of Texas, Governor Kevin Stitt has promoted the state's "pro-Second Amendment" stance to attract more firearms manufacturers.

Out of the top five states with the most manufacturers, four (Texas, Florida, Arizona, and Ohio) have constitutional carry laws. These laws allow individuals to carry a firearm without a permit.

Many of these top states also do not require permits for people to carry concealed weapons, such as handguns, in public.

July 2024 Made 60 Consecutive Months of Over 1 Million Background Checks per Month for Gun Purchases

AWR HAWKINS

According to NSSF, the total number of National Instant Criminal Background Checks for gun sales in July was 1,06,790.

“The last time monthly background checks associated with the sale of a firearm at retail were below 1 million was July 2019, when 830, 579 background checks for firearm sales were recorded,” NSSF noted.

NSSF president and CEO Joe Bartozzi commented:

These million-plus monthly background checks over the past five years represent the free expression of Second Amendment rights during tough and troubling times, including the COVID-19 pandemic when certain governors were shuttering gun stores and the Biden-Harris administration’s ‘zero-tolerance’ policy to revoke licenses to sell firearms. During this time, Americans who never previously considered lawful firearm ownership decided to become gun owners. We’re proud of our industry’s work to provide the means to exercise those rights to law-abiding citizens across the country.

Breitbart News has pointed out numerous times that monthly FBI reports on the number of background checks do not provide a precise figure on the number of gun sales in a given month. This is because some states regularly run background checks on concealed carry permit holders as well as checks on those applying for a permit for the first time, and neither instance is the result of a gun being sold.

NSSF goes through the FBI’s background check report, whittles it down until only background checks for actual sales are left, then publishes that figure. It is that final figure that has remained over one million a month for 60 consecutive months.

Over the years, our God-given rights have slowly but effectively been taken away by our government (or at least government has tried to take them away). They have been eroded and the people "brain-washed" by the continuous propaganda, not only by our government, but also by the government controlled media. [DEFINITION: Propaganda: the spreading of ideas or information to further or damage a cause.]

If you think the media is not controlled by the government in some fashion or another, then this also is a classic example of brainwashing. The "mindset of government" is such that the bureaucrats think they can cram anything down our throats and "We the People" will sit idly by, and to a certain extent, they are right! However, there comes a time when enough is enough! Have you reached that point, or does the government have to keep cramming more and more legislation down your throats?

In 1776, the shot that was heard around the world was fired. The ideas and philosophies of that day and age were embodied in the Anglo-Saxons who settled in America from their primary source of education: THE HOLY BIBLE; yet today, you can't even pray, let alone mention the Holy Bible in public schools.

The schools of today are controlled institutions. Government tells the so-called educators of today what they can use as textbooks and teach in public schools. Did you know that in some schools, there are classes teaching pupils how to fill out government forms such as the IRS 1040 form!

People, it is time we wake up to the cold hard facts of daily governmental interference in the people's affairs! We need to wake up to what is really happening in America and fight with all we have to keep our God-given rights.

The drug issue of today is the tool they have been waiting for. Government has finally put it all together in one neat package so they can "sell" it to America. With the drug issue, they can step up the eroding of more God-given rights. They can effectively begin to control guns, they can change the "green-backs" into "colored-backs" (colored or rainbow money), and the list could go on and on! Man has perverted and interfered with Biblical Principles, even with the principle of "just weights & measures."

What is the answer? GODS LAW! It has not been "put away" as most of the pulpiters have been preaching! Jesus, himself, stated in Matthew 5, Verse 17: "Think not that I am come to destroy the law, or the prophets: I come not to destroy, but to fulfil." Verse 18: "For verily I say unto you, Till heaven and earth pass, one jot or one tittle shall in no wise pass from the law, till all be fulfilled." Verse 19: "Whosoever therefore shall break one of these least commandments, and shall teach men so, he shall be called the least in the kingdom of heaven: but whosoever shall do and teach them, the same shall be called great in the kingdom of heaven." (KJV)

Until man is ready to accept the teachings of Almighty God, we will continue in our meandering ways. May God Forbid!

Until "HIS" return, let's just keep on doing "HIS" will and fight for rightness (righteousness)!

You may have heard a lot lately about the powers of Lion's Mane and it's for good reason! It's touted as a powerful tool to help heal and repair neurons in the brain naturally! It has been proven to also help stimulate brain development, reduce Alzheimer's and Dementia induced by degenerative neurons in the brain. More recently, there are studies being done to see it's effects on the spinal cord and the benefits it might have on repairing the spinal cord as it does help repair the central nervous system (nerves from the brain to the toes via the spinal cord). It also shows to help with memory and recall which we can ALL benefit from! Other benefits that don't involve healing the brain include but not limited to:

- Helps with stomach ulcers & Digestion issues
- Lion's mane contains compounds that exhibit anti-inflammatory effects, which could potentially help reduce pain and swelling in joints affected by arthritis.
- Studies on animals have demonstrated that lion's mane extracts can alleviate pain and cartilage damage in models of osteoarthritis.
